1/2 Million Dollars Available to Help Americans Return Home

WASHINGTON — (AP) — President Roosevelt Friday proclaimed a limited "national emergency" to safeguard the United States' neutrality and strengthen the national defense.

The president emphasized at his press conference that under no circumstances would the nation be put on a war-time basis.

The president said four executive orders would be issued Friday authorizing the following four steps under proclamation:

1. Recruiting for the army, and calling back first-line reserves to increase the enlisted strength, but now where near the full peace-time authorization.

2. Increase the naval personnel, but not to the full extent of peace-time authorization.

3. Authorize the Department of State under its emergency funds to use 1/2 million dollars to assist Americans to come home from the war zone.

4. Increase the personnel of federal investigating agencies to protect the United States against propaganda and other subversive activities.

Mayor Atkins Calls Attention City's New Traffic Ordinance

Newly-Enacted Law Would Insure Safety to Public — Would Keep Streets Clear for Traffic and Provide Ample Parking Space

To the Editor of the Hope Star: The City Council, on Tuesday night of this week, passed a traffic ordinance which supercedes all traffic laws heretofore in effect. The new ordinance deals with every phase of the traffic problem and is an improvement over the old law, and we believe will meet with general approval.

The best results from any law are obtained by reason of the people affected thereby, having a thorough knowledge of such law, and approving it, therefore, we urge the reading of said ordinance which appears in today's paper. The main objectives to be attained are as follows:

1. To enact such regulations as will insure safety to the traveling public.

2. To keep the streets, at all times, clear for traffic.

3. To provide ample parking space.

The same traffic rules concerning motor vehicles are applicable to bicycles and other vehicles traveling on the streets and we desire, especially, to mention bicycles. Children riding bicycles have grown rather careless, and in many instances, they disregard traffic regulations. We are fortunate that we have not had any serious accidents caused by such carelessness. Parents and traffic officers should instruct all children who ride bicycles as to the laws governing traffic and the officers should see that such laws are adhered to. By so doing, serious accidents may be averted. Certainly not any automobile operator wants to be involved in an accident, but unless traffic rules are better observed, by those riding bicycles, than they have been in the past few years, any automobile operator is likely, at any time, to be involved in a serious or fatal accident without any fault or carelessness on the part of such automobile operator. This warning is especially important at this particular time, as school will begin within the next few days and many pupils will be riding bicycles to and from school.

One important fact the general public, including the writer heretofore, should bear in mind is that the streets were built and are maintained to travel over and if everybody would bear this in mind it would avoid a lot of confusion and delay on the part of people who desire and are seeking to travel over the streets, but are prevented from so doing by other people who thoughtlessly use the streets to park their cars while they are visiting with neighbors.

During the past few years this practice has grown in the city of Hope and on many instances it is hard to refrain from double-parking, especially around the Post Office and in front of business houses where there is not vacant space near the curb, but after all, it is unfair to the traveling public.

The third problem is parking space. With the increase in automobiles it is a problem to find parking space, especially during busy days. Hope has always been noted for its appreciation and consideration of the people living within its trade territory and in studying this ordinance, careful consideration has been given to the interest of people living in the trade territory with the idea of arranging for them to have parking space at all times.

Therefore, a two-hour parking limit has been fixed for all cars in the business section of the city. This, the Council thinks, will provide ample time for anyone to transact business and those desiring their cars to remain in the business district all day in many instances, and with little inconvenience, find parking space in the vacant lots back of the business houses.

We, also, desire to call to the attention of the people, a parking lot which the City has arranged for with the Missouri Pacific Railway Company, across the tracks from the Barlow Hotel. This lot will soon be put in order as a parking lot and will accommodate 45 automobiles. In this lot cars may remain parked all day.

We believe that our people want the very best traffic regulations possible as will render the greatest good to the greatest number of people. We, therefore, respectfully request the reading of the new traffic ordinance and solicit the cooperation of the general public.

Respectfully submitted, W. S. Atkins, Mayor

Two German Ships Lost in North Sea

Strike Mines—But German U-Boats Get 4 Allied Ships

COPENHAGEN, Denmark — (AP) — Seven members of the crew of the German steamer Helfried Bismarck were killed Friday when an explosion sank the ship south of Ore Sound, between the island of Sjælland and Sweden.

Survivors said they believed the vessel struck a mine. Seven were rescued.

Earlier, an unidentified steamer was blown up off the Danish island of Aeron, south of Funen. Observers said they believed the ship was a German freighter and that all of the crew perished.

By Associated Press

German submarine warfare, which almost won the World War for Kaiser Wilhelm, became an important element of the new European conflict Thursday night as at least four more Allied ships were attacked in the Atlantic by the universally feared U-boats.

Two of these, the British freighters Mannar and Olivegrove were reported sunk. No immediate word was received of the fate of the others, the British Puckatana and French Tanara, also freighters.

Still another freighter, the Canard Royal Septre, was added to the roll of victims by the British Ministry of Information, which announced that the Canard had been attacked but reached port safely.

Previously listed were the Donaldson (British liner Athenia—Berlin has denied she was torpedoed—and the freighter Bonia).

Fifty-four German ships have taken refuge in the neutral port of Vigo, Spain, the ministry said, and nine others were in Japanese ports. Whereabouts of the $20,000,000 liner Bremen, pride of the German merchant fleet, remained a mystery.

Practice Game to Be Played 8 p. m.; Public Is Invited

No Admission for Season's "Warm-Up" Game Here Friday Night

WILL EXPLAIN RULES

Daniels Is Injured, Will Be Unable to Play In Game

Coach Foy Hammons will send two picked football teams into a battle at the high school stadium Friday night at 8 o'clock as a prelude to the curtain raised here the night of September 15 when former All-American Geyne Tinsley pits his Golden Hurricane team of Haynesville, La., against Hammons' Bobcats of Hope.

Preceding hostilities Friday night in the "practice game," Coach Hammons will explain new rules of the grid game. He will also introduce members of the 1939 squad.

The public is invited—and there will be no intermission.

All of the Bobcats will be seen in action with the exception of Jimmy (Boob) Daniels, regular quarterback, who pulled a legiment in the ankle during Thursday's practice. Hammons has ordered Daniels to "take it easy" with the hope that he will be in shape for the opening conflict against Haynesville.

Tootsie Cargile, former Hope High School grid star who has been working out with the squad the past several days, will replace Daniels in the Red's lineup. Cargile is getting in shape for college football.

Hammons has designed the teams the Reds and the Whites. The lineups are as follows:

The Reds — Ends — Jones, Ward, Clark, Tackles — Simpson, Calhoun and Kestner, Guards — Quimby, May, Keith and Jewell, Centers — W. Taylor and Jewell.

Backfield — Ellen, Cargile, Coleman, Steffey, Hammons.

The Whites: Ends — Eason and Green, Tackles — Conway, Carlson, Snyder, Guards — Stewart, Breeding and Ted Jones, Center — Bill Tom Bandy.

Backfield — R. Taylor, Simms, Baker, Murphy, Oliver, Bright.

Swapping Italy and Japan for Russia Good Trade for Hitler

But It Raises the Possibility Italy May Join Allies

Germans Letting Russia Into Balkans Would Frighten Italy

RUSSIA IS NEUTRAL

No Intention of Firing a Shot, Says Expert Eliot

What lies behind this sudden new German-Russian friendship? It seems to have called Italy and Japan toward their former Nazi ally. Did Hitler make a good bargain in trading them for Russian aid? George Fielding Eliot, famous authority on military subjects, answers those questions in the exclusive dispatch below to NEA Service.

By GEORGE FIELDING ELIOT (Written for NEA Service)

LONDON — The consensus of Europe's "expert guessers" as to the Moscow strategy in this present conflict is the Russian hasn't the slightest intention of moving a soldier or firing a shot until western Europe is in shambles.

On the basis of information here and my previous observations in Warsaw, Bucharest, Belgrade, Athens and elsewhere, this would seem to be a fair analysis of Russia's role in the current war.

From the German viewpoint, there is little doubt that Berlin expected Poland to surrender at the mere announcement of the Russo-German pact whereupon Britain and France would make the best of a bad bargain.

The Russians may also have considered this possibility, in which case Russia and Germany would divide Poland. If Russia had made a deal with the French and British, and then Germany beat Poland, Russia would get out of the melon.

However, the possibility must not be rejected that the Russo-German pact goes deeper and envisages real cooperation—in which case the whole situation changes.

Rumors continue of secret agreements partitioning the Balkans. To Russia goes Turkey, Bulgaria and Bessarabia, plus a free hand in the Baltic states including Finland and the eastern part of Poland. To Germany goes Yugoslavia, Rumania (less Bessarabia), Greece, Hungary, Danzig, the Corridor, upper Silesia and Posen, leaving of Poland only a small rump of a state around Warsaw.

The Germans must have known that the pact with Russia would alienate Japan and Spain and do no good for the Nazi standing in Rome. Yet they went ahead. Unless the Russians are deliberately double-crossing Germany, a new and startling situation may arise.

Considering Russia purely on speculative basis, as an active military ally of Germany attacking the Poles at the proper time, it is difficult to see how the Poles could resist the sheer weight of numbers of Russian troops, despite the band quality of the Russian command, staff and transport.

Similarly, a Russian attack on Bessarabia, coupled with lightning German moves by air, using troop transport planes to seize Rumanian oil fields, would create an impossible situation in Rumania.

Meanwhile, Turkey, which holds the key to the Black Sea, might well hesitate because of the long, exposed, Black Sea coast and the Caucasus frontier. And the Bulgars might come in if promised Dobruja and perhaps a seaport on the Aegean Sea and if relieved of the present active threat of Turkish military intervention against them.

Italy Might Swing to All this is quite possible that all this might completely alienate Italy and result in counter moves in the Balkan Peninsula, perhaps by Greece and Yugoslavia, supported by British, French and Italians.

The situation is very obscure. Certainly, if given Russian intervention on the German side and gradually growing German control of Russian resources, man power and raw materials, Germany would have made an excellent bargain in exchanging these against Italy, Spain and Japan. In-

"SIEGE OF MADRID"

Poland Expects Warsaw to Hold Out—French Guns Hammer Nazis

BERLIN, Germany — (AP) — The German supreme high command announced Friday that a German army unit had forced an entry into Warsaw.

The announcement called the unit armored troops. It further announced that troops were forging rapidly ahead and had reached Nadarzyn, Polish capital.

"This would indicate an entry had been made by the German column which has been driving on Warsaw from the north," the statement said.

Near German Lines

PARIS, France — (AP) — The French high command Friday reported its armies were progressing across the German frontier through wooded approaches to the Sierfried line.

New "local advances," announced by the war ministry's communique No. 9 Friday morning, were strengthening the spearheads driven into Germany's Saar basin.

Poles Still Confident

BUDAPEST, Hungary — (AP) — The Warsaw radio, silent Thursday, broadcast a statement Friday that "The Polish army will yet start its offensive."

"The present retreat is for strategic reasons," the announcement declared.

"The war continue for a long time. The Poles will not capitulate. We will fight to the finish."

"The Polish air fleet is intact. The world will understand this before long."

The broadcaster appealed to all citizens to help fortify Warsaw and declared it will be defended the way Madrid was defended by the Spanish republic.

German Island Attacked

COPEHAGEN, Denmark — (AP) — The thunder of guns and bombs Thursday night and early Friday indicated an attack was being made on the German island of Sylt by airplanes.

Sylt is just off southwest Denmark.

The island is the site of important German anti-aircraft fortifications.

The identity of the attacking aircraft was unknown. It was reported 10 to 15.

Germans Reported Pressed

PARIS, France — (AP) — The French General staff reported Thursday that German reinforcements were being rushed to the northern flank of the Western front where an increasing French attack was said to have carried the fighting into the fringes of Germany's Saar basin.

An army communique which said fresh German forces were observed moving up "from the interior of Germany" gave the first indication that French pressure might be forcing the Nazi command to concentrate troops in the West and ease pressure on Poland.

There was no indication whether German troops actually were pulled away from the Eastern front, but military observers pointed out that even if the reinforcements were units held in reserve up to now, Germany's potential striking power against Poland would be reduced by just that much.

"On the front between the Rhine and Moselle the enemy is being reinforced in front of us. Observers report the arrival of new forces coming from the interior of Germany."

French Artillery Begins

BASEL, Switzerland — (AP) — French heavy artillery Thursday hammered the main forts of Germany's Sierfried line from Lauterburg, where the French-German frontier allows easy access to the Rhine, the Saar frontier. Hundreds of thousands of French troops moved under protection of the

Goebbels, Tribuna, and the Human Spirit

In Venice stands the Doges' Palace quiet museum filled with relics of a day when free Venetian citizens voted for the head of a free Venetian citizens voted for the head of a free republic, 400 years before us.

Not long ago, Joseph Goebbels, German propaganda minister, visited the place, and intent on pleasing his Italian hosts, remarked: "This boasts a history more famous than that of the whole U. S." His Italian hosts were so overwhelmed by the tribute of the great man that a paper called the Tribuna sneeringly said that if the whole continent of North America were wiped out the history of the human spirit would scarcely suffer.

The human spirit is getting a pretty bad kicking around these days as none should know better than Goebbels and his Italian admirers, whose most outstanding contributions would seem to be the rubber truncheon and castor oil bottle. But that is not under discussion here.

Has all North America, as they say, contributed nothing to the human spirit? It is a fair question, and one we might well ask ourselves, had they not gratuitously done so.

Surely the conquest of a virgin continent by free men who made it and all its institutions their own, is not a nullity, nor are the Declaration of Independence, the Ordinance of 1787, the Constitution they ordained a string of ciphers. Surely the fresh, free wind that blew across the world with Emancipation, the saga of the Winning of the West, swept some miasmas from the spirit of men.

Did Emerson, and Whitman, and Poe, Mark Twain and Emily Dickson write in vain?

Did Brigham Young, toiling to found at once an infant empire and a new religion, leave never a mark upon the world of spirit? Are they benumbed who are about to make of Mother Seton a saint of the very Roman Catholic Church to which so many readers of the Tribuna no doubt belong?

Have free and open minds throughout the world been unaffected by Henry and William James, by Henry Adams, by Alfred North Whitehead and John Dewey? It is said that many, even in Europe, have not been entirely unmoved before the work of Whistler, of Homer, of Sargent, of St. Gaudens. Brian built well, but against the sweetest marble wedding cake of today's Victor Emmanuel Memorial one may without shame set Rockefeller Center.

Had the world been ready, and able to comprehend the dream of Woodrow Wilson for a sane, civilized world order, it might not today be plunging down to dust and the shadow.

These, among others, are perhaps not without meaning for the development of the human spirit.

And most significant of all, in the Americas we are still determined to keep open the door that leads to its further advancement, to keep the lamps alight and shield them from the blasts of Europe where, one by one, they flicked out, leaving a darkness upon the face of the earth.

Drinking Quart of Milk Each Day Promotes Growth, Retards Old Age

Dietary experts say a quart of milk daily is essential in the diet of persons up to 21 years of age.

A British commission, the Commission of the League of Nations and various nutrition groups in the United States back this opinion. Dr. E. V. McCollum, well-known dietary authority, has urged the use of this amount in his writings.

Milk contributes a ration to the body. Taken daily, a quart will make for a better balanced diet. Dr. H. P. Sherman, Columbia University nutritionist, made body laboratory studies on animal experiments to determine the optimum amount of milk a person should drink. He found a quart a day greatly favored development and growth in the young and improves health and vision throughout adult life.

Dr. Sherman said this amount of milk would actually forestall the advance of old age in the same individual, for it would act as a natural buffer against an earlier aging.

Of several notes on the observations made by Dr. E. A. Roberts of the University of Chicago, he found the daily addition of a pint of milk to the diets of children beyond the growth of those who did not receive the additional pint of milk. The milk supplied many of the dietary essentials. Dr. Roberts affirmed there is no other single addition that would have added as much in quantity to the diet with a similar addition of energy.

Firing Squad Mows Men Down

In "Ararat" (Carrick and Evans: $2.50), Elgin Groseclose sets a story in the historic lands between the Black and Caspian seas. The action occurs in the years from the Turkish massacres of 1895 to the end of the Russian revolution. It is a stirring book, filled with dramatic moments such as the following: a description of the Turkish massacre of all Armenian males over 14 in the village of Dirhan; On either side of him were Emmanuel's friends and neighbors...

break for the valley. The commandant shouted another order, and as the Armenians began to run in every direction, the soldiers loaded and fired, at will, shouting and killing, firing shot after shot at the fleeing Armenians, firing volley after volley into the heap of slain and dying. The air was filled with screaming and shouting and the cries of the dying.

Above all this pandemonium Emmanuel could hear the tricks of a stream. He was suddenly thirsty and he wondered where the stream came from. Turning his head, he saw blood flowing in a rivulet beside him. He realized now that he was lying among a heap of the slain. Over his head roared a vast tumult. Was he dead, or dying? Emmanuel did not know. He had been hit, perhaps. Or he had fainted and fallen.

After a while the shouting stilled and the rifle fire died.

Presently an officer stood over Emmanuel. The body that half covered Emmanuel was quivering. The officer pointed his revolver and fired. The body shuddered and was still. Emmanuel dared not breathe.

He hears that somewhere wars are lost and won. Science advances, new stars meet our ken; He leans upon his spade and lets the sun grow hot along his back. The dreams of men Are not his dreams; he keeps a dream of seeds, Of cool drops falling on the thirsty soil. His only battle is the war with weeds, His coveted career this simple toil. He has a notion that the universe Revolves about his hoe, that every clod He breaks is pregnant; and his thoughts rehearse, Day long, upon his partnership with God. Night long his darkness kindles with the glow Of every starry bloom he taught to grow.—Selected.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Isaiah: A Life Dedicated to God
Text Isaiah 61-63
By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.
Editor of ADVANCE

In the simple, direct words of our lesson, though the narrative is adorned with symbolism and vision, we have the story of the call of a great prophet in his life work.

Perhaps it would be found that a call of every prophet comes in some form off a vision, either dreaming or waking. Isaiah's vision evidently came in the form of a dream. It was in the year that King Uzziah died, after his long and prosperous reign of 52 years. In the dream, Isaiah saw the Lord sitting upon a throne, high and lifted up. The figure is not very clear, for Isaiah speaks of the seraphim which stood above the Lord. We do not know what sort of beings these six winged figures were. This is the only place in the Bible where the word occurs.

While we may not understand the details of the vision, its full effect is very plain. The seraphim cried out unto another, "Holy, holy, holy, is Jehovah of his glory." It was this impression of holiness that was dominant in the mind of Isaiah and that remained with him to dominate his life after the vision had disappeared.

What is holiness? It consists in relationship, but its essence is the idea of consecration and devotion. When Moses was ordered in his vision on the Mount to take his shoes off because the place on which he was standing was holy ground, it was the relationship that made the ground holy. Ground in itself has no character, either holy or unholy. But man has character, and his character is determined by his relationship. Holiness has the sense of righteousness, and it was this that was overpowering in the effect of the vision upon Isaiah.

In the presence of such a revelation of holiness and goodness, Isaiah felt his own weakness and his own sinfulness. We must not take his profession of unholiness to literally. He cried out, "Woe is me—I am undone, because I am a man of unclean lips," in much the same way in which another man, conscious of his lack and weakness and in deep humility, was to say, "Depart from me for I am a sinful man, O Lord!"

The Lord does not depart from men who approach Him in that spirit. Rather, it is they whom He chooses to be his servants and prophets.

Thus it was that the lips of Isaiah were touched with a coal, symbolizing the taking away of his iniquities and the forgiveness of his sins. In his vision he heard the voice of the Lord saying, "Whom shall I send, and who will go for us?" Isaiah's response to the vision was prompt, "Here am I; send me."

But what was most noteworthy was not merely the response in the vision, but the response in his life. He made the dream a reality. It was the call of the man to serve a people in a day when above all things they needed a prophet to lead them from the fatness of their prosperity and the materialism of their sensual living back to the realities of spiritual life and health.

It is at times when the prophet is most forgotten or neglected that he is most needed. Isaiah stands as the type of the true spiritual reformer leading a wayward nation back to the realities upon which its very life depends.

The greatest distance possible between any two points on the earth's surface, in a straight line, is approximately 12,500 miles.

SERIAL STORY

WORKING WIVES

BY LOUISE HOLMES

COPYRIGHT, 1939, NEA SERVICE, INC.

Yesterday, Marian cannot blame herself when Fellows blame her for holding Dan back, depriving him of his rightful place as head of the house. The crushing blow comes when Fellows asks that Sally take his dictation.

CHAPTER IV

AFTER his outburst, Mr. Fellows ignored, and seemed to forget, the conversation. He was himself again, businesslike, kindly, impersonal.

Shocked and bewildered, Marian tried to uncover the motive behind his frankness. At last she arrived at a comforting conclusion. No doubt G. F. had been merely letting off steam. Quite possibly his wife had hinted that he was not so wonderful as he thought himself to be. Marian had served as the buffer for his affronted sensibilities more than once.

When, shortly before lunch, Mr. Fellows asked her to choose a diamond bracelet for his wife, she chuckled to herself. So there had been trouble at home. She felt distinctly encouraged. G. F. couldn't get along without her. It might be a canny move to let him try.

Watching Sally Blake's bright head bent over her shorthand book, she decided against the experiment. No use sticking her neck out, as Dan would say.

AT 12:30 she took a cab to Jacques and met a distraught, feverish-eyed Carmal. They were taken to a small table in the corner. Carmal nervously pulled off her gloves.

"I think I'm going crazy, Marian."

"Oh, no, dear—of course, Pete's marriage was a shock—"

"Pete belongs to me." Carmal's rouged lips were a thin line. "But, Carmal—you could have had him—any time—"

"Why didn't I take him?" She smiled bitterly. "I thought he'd always be there—I couldn't marry him last year because I was buying my car—I couldn't marry him the year before because I had to have a milk coat. I've got the car and the coat, but—" She stopped, biting her lip. She was quietly hysterical.

"Listen, Carmal, be reasonable. You didn't want to pinch and scrimp—that's what it would have meant if you had married Pete. When you see him and his wife struggling along on his salary, doing without everything they want—"

"That's what I thought when he wrote me. He said he was going to marry this Julie person—her lips twisted over the name—unless I quit right then and came home. I cabled him to go ahead, but I—I didn't think he would."

"You've done the most sensible thing in the world. You have a swell job, opportunity for travel, money—"

"But I want Pete. The years ahead—so long—so lonely." After a sketchy luncheon, they left the restaurant. Two ultra-smart, young business women. One costily dressed covered heart-break, the other a constantly nagging fear. Gallantly they smiled at parting.

ANOTHER side of the hectic picture presented itself to Marian that afternoon when Florence Avery, the switchboard girl, came to her desk. Florence was a shy, retiring girl.

"Do you think I could have a small raise in salary, Mrs. Harkness?" she asked.

Marian looked doubtful. "Is there any particular reason why you need more money?"

"The girl blushed. 'Ted, my husband, wants a car. He says a man can't get a job without a car.' 'Hasn't your husband a job?' 'Oh, no, he hasn't worked since we were married.'"

"Florence, that's too bad. It makes it hard for you."

"I don't care whether he works or not," Florence replied with a touch of shy defiance. "It doesn't matter where the money comes from. We have lots of fun." She looked down, drawing a wistful breath. "I just thought—he hasn't seemed so happy lately—if I could get a car for him—on payments."

Marian felt that the world had gone topsy-turvy, it was all wrong somehow. Herself, beset with anxiety; Carmal, sick with grief because she had not been able to have her cake and eat it, too. And now little Florence, trying to hold her husband's love by providing for him more lavishly. Three business women. After all, were the homemakers to be envied? She thought of Dolly and Pete's Julie.

She said harshly to the waiting Florence, "If your husband wants a car I'm afraid he'll have to buy it for himself."

"Yes'm," Florence turned away, her small face shadowed. Marian thought: What's the matter with us? Has civilization gone into reverse? She sighed. Whether it had or not, there was no turning back. They must, all go on, caught in the web of their own weaving.

As for herself, she must find some way of circumventing Sally Blake. It should be simple. Sally had advantages, yes, but other than that, her advantages were on the negative side. She had no background of experience, she was only fairly adept. Several times that day G. F. had laughingly corrected her.

Laughingly—that was the catch. He had appeared to enjoy Sally's presence in the office. Marian set her chin. She'd hung on. The nagging dread again, the dread which did not concern Sally. What would she do if—? Instantly, she assured herself that the dread was absurd. She had managed her life for 12 years, forced the fates to smile upon it. It was most likely she could go on doing so.

AT the end of the afternoon she was utterly exhausted, distracted with the swinging pendulum of her thoughts. When Dan called for her at the office, she raised haggard eyes, sure of his sympathetic understanding.

"I'm so tired," she complained. "It's been a hectic day, Dan." She was on the verge of tears. If only Dan would take her in his arms, kiss away all her worries. She leaned toward him, only to have him turn abruptly away.

"That's the way they come sometimes," he said. Anyway, it was nice riding home with Dan. Carefully removing her hat, she leaned her head against the cushion. Wearily, she closed her eyes. The events of the day marched before her, troublesome, vexing, disturbing. They were well out Sheridan before she found the strength to tell Dan of Carmal's frantic regret.

Dan did not exactly say that it served Carmal right, but Marian received the impression that he thought so. He said, "Carmal has kept Pete dangling for 10 years. Just because she must have nick-nacks, things that are here today and gone tomorrow, she has deprived Pete of a home and love—and children."

Marian's unreliable temper flared. "I hope you're not aiming at me over Carmal's shoulder."

"We have a home, haven't we? And love—haven't we?"

Marian darted a glance at his strong, good-looking profile. Sarcasm again. What had come over Dan? Had he decided to strike back? Normally she would have tossed her head and laughed at the idea of Dan striking back. He was in no position to make terms. But she did not toss her head, she was far from laughing. Almost timidly, she touched his arm.

"Dan—would you be glad if we had a baby?"

"Lord, no," he exploded. "The poor little tad would have a type-writer for a mother and a spinelless dad for a father. We'll just spare the coming generation that."

Marian's hands closed into two tight fists.

Today's Dances Point to a War?

Arthur Murray Thinks They Are Like Those of About 1914.

By THE AP Features Service
Now we know. It's the prewar jitters that make the jitterbugs that way. And if they don't cut out the rug-cutting, it means war, just as it did 25 years ago.

A couple of fellows told us so. One is Arthur Murray, headliner in ball-room dance instruction. Listen to what Murray says about it.

"The present outburst of dance crazes is exactly parallel to a rash of jitterbugging that occurred in America in 1913 and 1914. That was the period when the Castle swan Promenade and America was doing the Turkey Trot. During my entire career, I have never witnessed such a tremendous desire on the part of the American people to get rid of nervous tension and frayed nerves by capering on the dance floor as I'm witnessing today."

Then there's Frank Volez, of the top-ranking hardwood team, Volez and Yolanda. Frank once wrote a whole essay to demonstrate the popular dancing is simply the expression of a people's national temperament.

And who, Mr. Pet, you see where dances like these are leading us.

Fueled for Flight—But Uncle Sam Said "Halt!"

An oil tanker lies alongside the giant German liner Bremen at her New York pier, pouring fuel oil into her tanks for a scheduled quick return to her home port. Then the dawn flight was halted when U. Maginot line into position, ready to strike at the points the high command decides is the weakest. A French communiqué tonight reported heavy German troop concentrations in the Moselle valley.

French movements in the Saar region were confined for the time being to local action, reports received here said.

The French were said to have taken over pill boxes in German territory before the main positions of the Siegfried line. The Moselle valley between the principalities of Luxembourg and the Saar is one of the most heavily fortified regions of both the Maginot and Siegfried lines.

Great French forts guard both sides of the Moselle near Sierck, while the Germans guard the Moselle and Rhine valley routes to Cologne.

Military observers in Switzerland doubted that the French would risk an assault in that stronghold. These observers said the Saarland could not fall, at least partially, into French possession with but little resistance.

German comment on this possibility was that "Louis Napoleon captured the Saar early in the Franco-Prussian war but lost the other great fortified area at the Swiss end of the two lines."

Two German Ships

steamer Manna was described by survivors as having been torpedoed. The Manna then opened fire as the crew of 88 sought to leave the sinking ship. Forty-six of the crew—three wounded—had been rescued. Two were dead. Forty were missing.

Among the wounded was Thomas Jones, 50, of Carnation, North Wales, chief petty officer. He said the Manna had put up the best fight of which she was capable before she was sent to the bottom last night 100 miles off the Portuguese coast.

Grimacing despite his two leg wounds, he recalled: "We broke out a 12 pounder, but we couldn't reach the submarine. She was too far away."

The Manna's master, he added, gave orders to abandon ship after the first torpedo struck amidships and it became evident that the submarine was not coming within range of the freighter's gun.

"We launched four boats on the port side—the side away from the submarine—but the ship swung around as we were doing this," Jones said, "and we found ourselves staring straight at the submarine."

Then, he added, the attacking vessel fired a second torpedo at the same time opening fire with its gun. He said that in his opinion the ship was fired. A physician at the hospital said the men's wounds indicated they were inflicted by machine gun bullets.

"Most courteous" German submarine commander "greatly helped" 33 seamen before sinking their British freighter Olivegrove, Capt. Giles Steadman, of the United States liner Washington, wireless after rescuing the men. Steadman said the submarine ordered "all hands to abandon ship" and "when the boats were in water and clear of ship a torpedo was fired into the Olivegrove."

Laneburg Plans a Livestock Entry

Animals Groomed for Exhibit in County and State Shows

By GERALD REYENGA

The F. F. A. boys from Central High School have completed plans to show livestock in the county and state shows this fall. Animals which are to be shown in October are receiving special care in order that they may be in the best possible condition for show purposes. Although the second annual State Livestock Show will be held during the third week of October (October 16-21) it will be the first livestock shown in the F. F. A. division from Nevada county.

The stock show constitutes a splendid advertising medium. There is no better method of getting one's stock before people to whom they are of greatest interest than to put them in a showing. The showing has been an influential agency in stimulating interest in livestock. Because of the fact that breeders exhibit their best animals in the ring and fairs the livestock show affords a producer the best opportunities available to learn about livestock, to study the conformation and types of the best animals in the various breeds, and to obtain the most up-to-date information concerning the most approved systems of feeding, feeding and managing. The show ring always offers inspiration to the livestock producer and proves to be a stimulus to him in improving his own herd.

Fitting and showing stock furnishes to the exhibitor an opportunity to indulge in wholesome competition. If his animals prove to be superior they may be a source of substantial returns, either in the form of cash prizes or in lead to future sales. One of the chief reasons for fitting and showing livestock is to advertise the herd so that the breeding stock may be sold more readily and on a superior market. Just as the merchant displays his goods in showcases, so the breeder of cattle must place his best individuals where potential buyers may see and admire them. Every livestock farm is to some extent, a show place; every cattleman likes to have appreciative visitors.

Chiefly in the case of sugar, some said, there appeared to be definite reasons for a price increase. It has been reported for some days that sugar refiners were holding off offerings. Some wholesalers were informed only after receiving new orders that the price had been substantially raised.

In Washington, Dr. John Bernhardt, chief of the Sugar Section of the Department of Agriculture said the nation has a surplus of sugar and that it was possible a "synthetic" shortage was being created. He said the department might raise marketing quotas if processors and refiners persisted in holding supplies off the market. Domestic and Puerto Rican producers, he said had on hand 800,000 tons of sugar in excess of marketing quotas which may be placed on the market.

There apparently were no general increase in the prices of shoes and clothing in the nation, despite rising tide and wool prices. It was pointed out that most autumn buying by retailers was done before the rise, and that subsequent retail price increases might not be necessary until after Christmas, normally a time for bargain sales.

Guests Friday were: Dr. A. W. Hudson and Tom Compton, of Prescott; De Mita Sand, Hot Springs; and Jack Lowe, Gordon.

The Rev. Tom Brewster, who retired this summer as club president, was presented with a past president's pin by C. C. Spragins in behalf of the club.

A plea for a spirit of tolerance toward the people of all nations regardless of their official position in the European war was made Friday noon at Hotel Barlow by Larry Akers, noted Memphis Rotarian, in an address of the Hope Rotary club.

Introduced by N. T. Jewell, who was president of the local club the year Mr. Akers was district governor the speaker went on to say that even now there are Rotarian groups abroad seeking some peaceful solution for Europe's war.

Rise in Food Cost Laid to Hysteria

No Good Reason for Rise Except Possibly in Case of Sugar

NEW YORK — The European war has hit the American family dinner table, a national survey disclosed Thursday. Throughout the nation, retail staple food prices soared. Sugar, flour, lard, butter, meats jumped, mostly about 10 to 25 per cent over last week, sometimes much higher.

Rationing of supplies to housewives by retail grocers was common practice in many cities. Some cities reported a temporary shortage of basic staples.

Housewives complained to officials. In New York, Mayor LaGuardia received 5,000 complaints in two days. Many city, state and national officials ordered investigations to check profiteering. Wholesale grocery men blamed housewives. Week-end war news sent them scurrying to put away emergency supplies of storable food and the rush precipitated local shortages.

Many officials and wholesale food dealers said there was no reason now for a general price rise. There are ample supplies of food of all sorts, they said, plenty for all demands and more.

Chiefly in the case of sugar, some said, there appeared to be definite reasons for a price increase. It has been reported for some days that sugar refiners were holding off offerings. Some wholesalers were informed only after receiving new orders that the price had been substantially raised.
